A Jubilee When He Gets Out of Jail This Afternoon.

A new trouble oppresses the hearts of the followers of Patrick Jerome Gleason, Lord Mayor of Hunter's Point.

Right in the midst of the preparations for a fitting thanksgiving at the release from jail of their loved one the Grand Jury has ail of their loved one the Grand Jury has brought in two indictments against him. One of the indictments charges His Honor with the ownership of the land on which the Puritan Club reared its houselast February, and the other alleges that the Mayor has been guilty of misfeasance in failing to wipe out the racing pools business carried on at the Club, right under the poses of his Capt. Anthony S. Woods, Chief of the Long Island City police, was a witness be fore the Grand Inquest, and it is said that he told the Grand Jury that he did not dare to raid the Puritan as it would be as much as his official head was worth.

At any rate the Grand Jury has indicted

At any rate the Grand Jury has indicted the Lord Mayor, and there is a ingering fear that the preparations made for a great jubilee parade to-night may prove to be but the arrangements for a funereal pageant.

Sheriff Matt Goldner cannot be accused of a maddening love for the burly, bluff and bullying Mayor, and he might keep His Honor out of harm's way in the pretty third tier grated bondoir till late to-night, and then re-arrest him under the indictments at an hour too late for his friends to get ball for him, which would deprive them of his company over Sunday.

To do this, however, a bench warrant is required, and Under-Sheriff Sharkey says there is no bench warrant, and that the Sheriff has received no copies of the in-dictments.

When completed the new Criminal Court House will be an official palace, and is intended to eclipse anything of its kind in this country. Its estimated cost, including fairniture, is $1,800,000, and it is expected that it will be completed by March, 1802.

The style of architecture adopted is known as the modern Renaissance, and the columns of the imposing Ceptre street entrance, as shown in the illustration, will be of polisised granite, flanked by colossal statues of Liberty and Justice on either side.

There will be room in the buildings for the Court of Over and Terminer, the Court of General Sessions, the District Attorney's office, the Court of Special Ressions and the First District Folice Court both of which are now in the Tombs, the Grand Jury room, the Department of Street-Cleaning, the Health Department, the Coroners' office, the Excise Department and the Civil. EMMONS'S LOVE WAS FATAL

The Murderer of Kate Owens Sorry He Did Not Die Also.

Edward Emmons, who shot and instantly killed Mrs. Kate Owens in her apartments, 20 New York avenue, Staten Island, last night, and then attempted to take his own life, was not inclined to talk this morning. He was not seriously injured, and beyond saying that he was sorry his wound had not break your skuil. "Don't you pull my hair or I'll dig out your eye." "Oh! let go of my thumb."

After he had made this great ado for three or four minutes he returned to his head living with Emmons for about six years. A short time ago they quarreid and separated. He says he reclaimed her from a degraded life and took care of her but that she proved unfaithful and ungrateful.

Emmons is 27 years old and boarded in the Vanderbilt House. In Clifton, for some time. He was about to go to St. Lomis and called on Mrs. Owens hast night, it is believed, to induce her to accompany him.

He became curaged during a conversation about his supposed rival. James vires, a deck hand on the Staten Island ferry-boas Northfield, and Mrs. Owens finally ordered him to leave. She refused to shake hands with him at the door, and he drew a revolver and fired live shots at her. Three shots took effect, one that ledged in the reck in the jugular voin killing her instanty.

Emmons then placed the revolver to his head and fired. The bullet struck the skull and glanced off.

He made no resistance when arrested, and simply said he hoped she was not mortally injured.

Under the contract Mr. Brown must furaian 12,000,000 ballots, and he has no accitation in saying that by working both offices might and day he can deliver the regular ballots according to contract on Saturday of next week.

The eatra ballots made necessary by special candidates in some districts will complicate the work, and may defeat the efforts of the printer.

But she could not or would not be pacified. Her fears soon developed into a real mania and three times in the week she would keep her husband from sleep by asserting with a show of vehemence that she was positive a man had got under the bed. The husband determined to break his wife of this foolishness and set the next outbreak as the time when he would carry outbreak as the time when he would carry out his plans.

Sure enough, a day or two after the wife declared that she had heard a noise and that she knew there was a man under the bed. The husband jumped up, crawled under the couch, and at once began a fearful hand-to-hand conflict with the imaginary hand-to-hand conflict with the maginary intruder.

He pounded the floor, rolled hither and thither, and every minute or two he would ejaculate: "Let go of my throat or I'll break your skull." "Don't you pull my hair or I'll dig out your eye." "Oh! let go of my thumb."

The Mayor says that he will not send the police lists to Mr. Porter to be pigeon-holed unless he will make a definite agreement to order a recount in the svent of a verification of the accuracy of the police enumeration.

As it is, he simply says if he is given possession of the lists he will investigate the matter, by comparing them with his own lists, and gives no assurance whatever that he will do anything to rectify the Census Bureau's records.
